Dramatic Rescue of Cripple

Firemen Stand Guard as Blaze Rages

Firemen and neighbors carefully take Mrs. Carolina DeBono, 68, a cripple, through window of a Hanover street house as fire was fought in apartment where she lived with her husband, Angelo. In a crude hammock made from blankets, the elderly woman was kept on third floor fire escape. Others were taken from burning house by fire escape.

Blaze Routs 24 In North End

Fire that climbed from the cellar to the second floor today destroyed three 14 adults and 10 children from their apartment in a building block, swelling on Hanover street, North End, early today. Two alarms were sounded.

Passing a cripple from a building, firemen carried Mrs. Carolina DeBono, 68, crippled wife of the owner, from her third floor apartment down the fire escape.

Because of her infirmity, it was deemed unsafe to attempt to bring her down the escape, and two firemen stood guard at her side during the blaze.

Her husband, Angelo, 70, was rescued from the back of a fireman. They were two of the 34 adults who escaped.

The smaller children were rescued out by their parents.

A Red, Red Robin Comes A-Bobbin

CRABBE, Jan. 25 (AP)—The evening resident of a two-story apartment that brought both lightning and Northern light was the appearance here today of a robin, generally considered a harbinger of spring. Farmer George Fry reported he saw the bird near a barn which was struck by lightning yesterday.

Big Niagara Span Periled By Ice Jam

Future Niagara Falls, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—Niagara's famous "Falls View Bridge," a high-lift steel structure known to millions of housewives, warned danger today under the onslaught of the largest Niagara Falls ice jam in 30 years.

Engineers prepared to attack the ice with dynamite as a heavy wall, estimated in some places to be 100 feet high, rose in the gorge below the falls.

The bridge, resembling under tremendous ice pressure, was closed to all traffic. Soon afterward a wave appeared in its middle and several steel beams were twisted.

Early this afternoon, while a crowd watched, part of the upper bridge structure shifted perceptibly downward. Several large steel girders supporting the arch had previously been twisted by ice.

A section of the upper part of the span about three or four feet thick, was a running noise and was over in a few moments.

Quarried between the rocky Canadian and American shores the ice, treated up on dry land and towed the famous "Maid of the Mist" steamers off their winter dock.

Ice and water rushed into a Canadian hydro-electric plant, putting it out of commission and forcing employees to flee.

Hurley's Budget Due Late Today

A budget based on the $74,000,000 of last year was expected to be submitted to the Legislature by Governor Hurley late today in line with the Governor's pledge of "no administration of age economy."

Avoiding specific information until announcement this afternoon, the Governor indicated that estimates in virtually all state department had been greatly reduced.

The budget message has been in preparation since last November, when Governor Hurley notified all departments to "scrutinize every item" with an aim to reducing expenses.

The Governor's revelation that heavy slashes had been effected in administration costs in 20 state departments came in the face of predictions by political observers that the 1938 budget would be in excess of last year's.

New items, according to Governor Hurley himself, total about $2,000,000, which will be required to pay the costs of the increased number of persons eligible for old age pensions as a result of the reduction in the age requirement from 70 to 65 years, stipulated by law.

Increases in automatic retirement of judges, increase in maintenance of state institutions and in forest charges.

Buckley Finds 'Fraud' in Hospitals

Visit Paid Medfield Today

State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley today turned the spotlight of investigation on every mental institution operated by the State of Massachusetts.

Spurred by reports from his agents that many potential killers are allowed to roam unchecked through the institutions, Buckley ordered a thorough check, at risk of the 21 state asylums.

He declared: "I have found discrepancies in the purchase of food and supply for the hospital. Also, in the financial records, there seems to be some difficulty in the way the books have been kept. I can't understand why certain records were not on hand when we required them. There is no reason for this and I believe that if the books had been kept properly, there would have been no delay in our audit."

Before his audit is completed, he believes there will be several recommendations by important officials.

Borealis Seen With Rainbow Colors Here

Wire and Radio Back To Normal After Halt By 'Magnetic Storm'

Greater Boston citizens, many of whom had never seen a similar sight, marveled today at the "magnetic" Aurora Borealis which filled New England's heavens last night with all the colors of the rainbow.

Wire and radio communications, interrupted by the "magnetic storm" believed responsible for the phenomenon, were back to normal today.

Coming without warning, the Borealis, or northern lights, suddenly illumined the skies, not only of New England, but of all Europe and other parts of the world.

Seeing the multi-colored shafts of light, apparently shooting from the ground upward and joining in the east, many persons in New England thought a gigantic fire was in progress and phoned fire departments. In rural sections of Europe, peasants thought it signified the end of the world and shivered in fear.

In Grenoble, France, scientists declared there had been no similar display since 1709.

The sky show was seen best in rural communities, where street lights did not hinder observation. The haze of lights seemed to change color by the minute. Great streams of sunset red and red-gold shaded to pink, then flared again. Green, blue and white shafts of light rose to a "crown" directly overhead.

Short wave radio was halted at intervals, and long distance telegraph lines registered unusually high ground currents.

2 Boston Youths Held After 6-Hour Hunt

WARWICK, R. I., Jan. 26 (AP)—Two youths giving Boston addresses were arrested in the woods off Quaker Lane this morning after Warwick, West Warwick and plain police combed the section for six days. Their feet into the woods as they tried to escape.

The hunt began after Plainville Norman Thatcher saw three young men leave a few white spots in the snow. A twelve-point bloodhound, as well as two state police dogs, were used to track the youths. In the woods the police found a stolen automobile and a set of stolen parts as well as about $5 worth of merchandise taken from the gas station.

Lone Officer Nabs 2 Break Suspects

Probably one victim of a robbery, Police Officer Michael J. McNulty of Charlestown nabbed two youths from the abandoned window of a Western street store early today and arrested another youth at point of exit.

McNulty was attracted by the sound of breaking glass. He saw a youth "watching" outside a store. The patrolman collected him and forced him into the store where he discovered the other suspect.

London Shocked As Prince Sings Wally's Praise

Christopher Puts His Full "O. K." Upon Windsor Bridal

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Something of a bombshell was dropped in circles of British royalty with publication of the memoirs of Prince Christopher of Greece, in which he extolled the romance of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in thirteenth phrases.

The sensation arose from the fact that Prince Christopher, in addition to being the ranking member of European royalty, is the vicar of the Duchy of Kent, the former Princess Marina of Greece, who married the Duke of Windsor, was the Duke of Windsor's favorite brother.

Prince Christopher told in detail of the court function at which he met the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield while the Duke of Windsor was Prince of Wales.

"Wonderful Woman"

At that time, he said, Wallis defied the American woman who was to become his wife as "wonderful."

"As Prince of Wales and King," Prince Christopher, Edward knew hundreds of women, noble and many more suited to the position of becoming his wife than Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

"But these considerations did not weigh with him. She was simply the woman he loved, and it had to be everything or nothing. He is one of those people who are ruled by the gods with temperament and imagination and an immense capacity for happiness or sorrow."

Describing his first meeting with the young Duchess of Windsor at Buckingham Palace on the eve of the royal wedding to the Duke of Kent, Prince Christopher said:

"Edward gripped my arm. 'Christie,' he said, 'come with me. I want you to meet Mrs. Simpson.'"

In CHRISTOPHER'S CLASS
"Who is she?" I asked. "She is an American," he replied, "and she is wonderful!"

"The duke scarcely left her side all evening," Prince Christopher said, "despite the fact some of the most beautiful women in Europe were doing their utmost to attract his attention."

"He never appeared even to notice them. He was it love as he given them and women to have only once in a lifetime."

Prince Christopher said the Duchess, along with Christina and Helen of Teck, as one of the great women in history.

Coast Banker Hits Turkish Trade Pact

Giannini Says Deal Would Ruin California Fig, Raisin Growers

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—Forecasting grave consequences to California's major raisin and fig industry, A. P. Giannini, famed San Francisco banker, today wired President Roosevelt a vigorous protest to a proposed reciprocal trade agreement with Turkey.

Giannini predicted such an agreement would "force insubstantial growers into bankruptcy" and would increase "the price of raisins and figs" to the detriment of the President to consider the consequences before any action is taken.

The text of his telegram to the White House follows:

"To the Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt,
President of the United States,
White House, Washington, D. C.
We are much concerned over report that a proposed trade agreement is being negotiated with Turkey whereby the duties on raisins and dried figs are to be lowered to such an extent that would threaten the economic existence of these two industries of such major importance to California."

"It is not the first time he has raised his powerful voice in warning. Never has it been more urgently needed to rescue the country from impending economic disaster by which it is being threatened by our amiable, well-intentioned, life-long free trade-minded state secretary."

Sees Killers Peril To State's Insane

Buckley Asks Records As 3 Probes Get Under Way

hospital today to continue his investigation. Informed of the auditor's statement, Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, acting head of the department of mental diseases, said he had no comment.

Dr. Perkins also refused to reveal details of an hour's conference he had with Chairman William A. Brown of the legislative public welfare committee and Representative Francis X. Clancy of Gloucester of the committee.

Representative Hurley, from Brighton, declared his entire committee would go to Medford today for a hearing.

Governor Hurley is expected to follow the latest lead set by the state auditor, whose revelations of the three killings at the Medford hospital led to an investigation.

Buckley during the past year has checked the books of virtually every State institution, disclosing several instances of widespread fraud.

It was during an audit at the Medford hospital that he learned of the murderous attack by Frank Loprete, which resulted in the deaths of two other inmates. This disclosure he followed with one of a secret killing last August.

Meanwhile, it was learned exclusively by the Boston Evening American, scores of complaints have been received by Buckley and Governor Hurley in regard to the proper segregation at the institution.

Failure to separate the dangerous inmates from harmless inmates is alleged, has placed the state in a majority of the 28,000 inmates in state hospitals in jeopardy.

SHARER WANDERED ABOUT
Political, moral and financial in nature, the complaints charge, are aimed to affect the state's mental hospitals.

Buckley, in his disclosure of the second killing, that of Louis Burdette, by James Clancy, pointed out that Clancy had been permitted the liberty of the Medford hospital for several weeks after the killing.

News of this killing was first made public by the state auditor, who reported the killing to the department of mental diseases, now under the direction of Dr. Clifton T. Perkins.

As Buckley looked out to other institutions, two other state agencies questioned their probes at the Medford hospital.

First in line under way was the state's Department of Public Safety, headed by Eugene M. McWhorter. He held a hearing at the Medford hospital.

Assisted by a division of state department of public safety, McWhorter, superintendent Dr. Earl K. Hall and a number of employees.

He conducted a complete institutional history of the inmates concerned in the slaying and of events leading up to them.

He also interviewed Commissioner Charles Hall of Cambridge police, who arrested Loprete last March after his fatal attack with an axe upon Bruno Kaurer, 72, of Abington avenue, Cambridge.

Investigating the second killing revealed by Buckley, McWhorter attempted to ascertain why there had been no inquiry into the death of Louis Burdette, who was killed by James Clancy, Napa inmate, last August.

State police also questioned Dr. Perkins and other officials of the mental diseases department at Boston.

Governor Hurley, who last night said he would not consider any charges against Judge Shattuck, a day meeting of the Executive Council, prepared all preliminary reports given him by Commissioner McWhorter.

Dracut-Republican Utopia; Dealers Out

DRACUT, Jan. 25.—Henceforth, as Republicans would contend, Dracut is a town of utopia.

In this town's opinion, which is equivalent to an election, there was only one Democratic candidate, John H. Dracut.

The total vote cast in both parties was 249, of which 229 were Republicans. Townsman commented it a good vote.

A majority of the 157 Democratic voters wrote in Republican names.

Secret Parleys Set to Frame Tax Bill

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The House Ways and Means committee today prepared for a series of secret sessions to frame a tax bill.

Three, starting today, at 10 a. m., of which shattering party was made by the committee.

The Republican revolt against parity taxes on closely held or family-owned corporations earning over $100 a year.

Republican demands, possibly supported by some Democrats, for outright repeal of the undistributed profits tax of 70 percent of income.

Similar demands for a flat tax on each gain instead of the present modification of the present law.

Committee leaders pointed to the testimony of business leaders praising proposed modification of the profits and gains taxes in exchange for the repeal of the undistributed profits tax.

But the committee plan will be approved by a vote of 20 to 10, possibly without admitting that modification will be helpful, less than outright repeal of the profits tax is necessary to stimulate business.

A close vote was forecast in the committee on the proposal to levy profits tax of 20 percent on each closely held or family-owned corporation earning over $100 a year and failing to distribute 70 percent of their profits.

The committee received was filled with protests that the plan would be helpful, less than outright repeal of the profits tax is necessary to stimulate business.

Gen. Johnson Says: DEAL HAS CHANGED Turn-Coating Not By Him

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

TULSA, OKLA., Jan. 26.—I have been increasingly critical of some of the proposals of this Administration since the first of the year. I was critical of some before the last election.

When the quadrennial choice was presented between these proposals, including what had been criticized—and the proposals and the man of the opposition, under our two-party system you had to choose.

I chose the former and supported it as hard as I could.

I carefully warned that, as a newspaper critic, I had criticized before and would continue to criticize after the election. This Administration knowing that, accepted that support and used it.

Now that the criticism continues, I am told by some New Dealers that it is partly turn-coating. Al Smith, Liberty League disgraced, was expected to intend to reverse all policies I have supported and support all policies I have opposed. I even heard that the Opu is being ousted.

First was well known, I was an ardent supporter of the First New Deal which was Labor must have an unhampered right of organization and representation, free from employer domination. It must be protected by real and effective legislation outlawing child labor, sweatshops and controlling maximum hours and minimum wages.

In industry and commerce some means must be found to protect the 90 percent of decency against the 10 percent cheating fringe.

Agriculture must be given a price benefit, up to pre-war price parity, on domestic products, and a tariff benefit to industry.

The old abuses in banking and the securities act must be modified; exchange must be eliminated and they must never return. Big business must have justice, but it must never again aspire to a dominating voice in government. No class must aspire to such a voice.

Utmost enjoying monopolistic price controls for public service must be adequately regulated. Suffering and deprivation from unavailability employment must be relieved.

That was my faith then. It is my faith now. What I have criticized has been in addition to, or departure from those principles. There has been no turning back but by no, I have said that I consider these proposals dangerous and bad. I propose to go on saying so.

What gets me is the assertion that I do this as a politician. For the love of Mike, in which party? I have never asked a man for a vote or political favor in my life. This column has made so many enemies in high places on both sides that I couldn't be elected dog-catcher in my own home town.

If, in a new election, this administration stood for the things stated in my faith as I stand in the last election, its adversary would be controlled by men who have no open enemies and would not support that opposition.

But that would not be a politician, it would be a man of principle committed with a professional duty, as I think, in state opinion and state position, regardless of party or person. That is my job and I will do it. I don't want any other job. I don't want anything I ever did. I don't see the Administration.

(Radio comment by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson is broadcast every Tuesday night, 8:30 to 9:30 p. m., on W.B.Z., through station W.B.Z.)

Knickerbocker Says: Huge Soviet Navy New Stain Goal

(Editor's Note: The first foreign newspaper permitted to visit the city in ten years, H. R. Knickerbocker, the noted roving correspondent of International News Service, found Vladivostok a virtual fortress, he reveals in the following article. Ninth in a series of twelve on "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Warnings," this article for the first time describes in detail the extent to which Soviet Russia has prepared her chief far eastern port for the conflict with Japan that seems inevitable. Knickerbocker has just returned to Paris after a 12,500-mile trip across Asia and Europe.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Jan. 26 (INS)—There is much talk of a threatened return to the Middle Ages, but the world has already entered the dark period.

Communications by radio, airplane and all those instruments of progress we boast about, have been virtually severed between great parts of the world, politically aligned against each other and determined to maintain complete isolation.

Just as in Japan, so in the Soviet Union, the population is kept hermetically sealed from the outside world.

As in Rome the Chinese authorities confined all Chinese literature, as in Vladivostok the NKVD took all Japanese literature, and a good deal more besides, including what I have never seen of stories and letters.

It was a holiday for the NKVD men at the Vladivostok customs to examine the baggage of only five passengers. One Soviet engineer, one wife of a Soviet diplomat, a Chinese business man and myself. In 20 years of traveling I have never undergone such a search.

They opened the baggage and probed the same. They emptied every value and looked them over for the bottom. My bag of canned food for the two weeks' journey lay open, examined, and they took each can of beans and extracted whether it was fresh.

Danaher, almost invisible, when he found a Japanese sword, a Christmas present for a small boy. They clustered around it and looked at it as I perceived them to test its edge and find it dull.

I dug out a toy machine-gun and in a moment of bad judgment pointed it at them. The NKVD men jumped. One even put his hand on his gun. Not a smile or a word of explanation. They grins at the NKVD men for the chief to examine.

He then got up and took a scrap of printed matter. They said I would get them into trouble. But I insisted on going along to headquarters of the NKVD to explain to the chief how important it was to see some of my documents and to give him to see them.

GUIDES TERRIFIED
The idea of going to the NKVD headquarters terrified the two tourist guides who had met me. Through the customs examination they had hardly been able to enter a word and when they did it was with extraordinary misgivings, so terrified were they of the institution which, as one of the guides put it, "is the instrument of Red terror and is to be feared."

Nevertheless, we went, and I was received by the NKVD chief, a figure who for the first time inspired me, two, with anxiety. Mongolian extraction, he had wild eyes and a thin mustache. He turned down at the corners, and from a large mole on his chin grew a pair of thick brows.

Without a word he stared at me for at least a minute, then he looked at his back. But to my surprise, he permitted me to examine the package of documents. I tried the NKVD building in each Soviet city is the headquarters of the true government. My host was the real boss of Vladivostok. He treated all alike. The wife of the Soviet diplomat before doors and cried after a full hour of examination. The Soviet engineer, employed by Moscow on a responsible mission abroad, had to surrender even his standard reference book on engineering.

HOTEL FILTHY
By the time we reached the Hotel Chelyuskin, the old familiar pal of anxiety, unreasonableness, indefatigable, but real as a physical monster, had descended upon us. It never leaves until you cross the frontier, going out. Here it grew heavier as we entered the hotel. The NKVD men with grease, the place

Does Your Breath Broadcast—
"I WEAR FALSE TEETH"?
Play Safe—Be Sure—Use Polident
Most people who wear plates or bridges suffer from a special kind of bad breath. Dentists call it "denture breath." You don't know if you have it until you can smell your own breath. Friends will shudder—people avoid you! And the worst of it is, that ordinary brushing cannot prevent it. Neither will mouth washes. For the odor comes from a mucus-coat that collects on plates and bridges. This mucus soaks up germs and decay bacteria cause a vile odor that you cannot detect. One thing can stop "denture breath"—and that's Polident! This new brushing cleaner for false teeth has won the approval of thousands of dentists. Does it say it is a great blessing? Polident only purifies.

Von Wiegand Says: Giant Guns Make Singapore Secure

Karl H. von Wiegand, dean of American war correspondents, on a flying tour of the Far Eastern war zones, stops off in Singapore to observe Britain's naval maneuvers at the strategic sentinel post of the Orient, and reveals herewith what is behind the British display of military power there at this time.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Dean of American War Correspondents
SINGAPORE, Jan. 26—The unspoken thought in British minds is: "The Japanese shall not pass" this corner of Asia.

Next week, the largest and most extensive land, air and sea maneuvers ever staged east of the Suez are to begin at this great naval base. They will last seven or eight days.

I have just flown across and 12 miles from the open Europe and most of Asia in order to arrive here in time for these war games and to ascertain their international significance.

First, can a British fleet present an enemy fleet from passing from the Pacific into the Indian Ocean and toward the Red sea?

GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT

From the Novel by Clements Ripley

A Cosmopolitan Picture to Be Released Soon by Warner Brothers.

1878.—The '49 days are gone. The yellow gold of California, poured through the Treasury, has kept the Union going through the first great modern war the world has ever seen.

It has hurried three thousand miles of steel across the continent.

But the days when a man stuck in a pick and pried up a fortune are gone.

The Comstock has gone. Grant's administration is gone. Hayes is President now.

Once again, gold is King in California. Hydraulic monitors have replaced the old cradle and long Tom.

Great scythes of water rip the mountains apart and hurl them into the streams. And in the valley, a Mr. Hatch takes a first crop from his hundred and twenty acres of fruit trees.

The world will never know of Mr. Hatch, but when he studies his ripening fruit in the hot stillness of a summer dawn he does a greater thing than all the red-shirt boys, all the Nob Hill nabobs, for the future of California.

CHAPTER I

"Serena!" The Colonel might have been commanding a regiment.

"—and you won't work!" Serena shouted as she fled.

The Colonel sat down heavily. He applied himself to his cigar.

"She's just like my son, Gin," Ralph chuckled. "Stubborn!"

"Pshaw!" Lance muttered.

January Is Best Time to Make Marmalade

By MARTHA LEE'S

WEDNESDAY MORNING BROAD-CAST OVER STATION WJLB

A January at the winter's end...

...reminiscent of the time to make marmalade. Are you taking advantage of the price of orange and grapefruit to prepare this sweet for the family of the year?

Citrus fruit preserves are easy to make because there is never any doubt about its quality.

The fruit contains sufficient acid to guarantee results.

Even though January doesn't show the grapes and pines it is the right time to make the marm-alade. This is the peak time of production and with oranges, lemons and grapefruit plentiful and inexpensive it is time to do your winter preserving.

CITRUS MARMALADE

1 grapefruit

1 lemon

1 sugar

Wipe fruit and slice very thin.

Remove seeds of fruit and core of lemons. Measure and add three times the quantity of water. Let stand in dish overnight. Boil until the fruit is soft. Measure, add an equal amount of sugar and boil stirring occasionally until the syrup thickens about 15 minutes.

Put in jars and seal.

MIDWINTER JAM

1 pineapple

1 cup seedless raisins

1 cup currants

1 cup sugar

Cook and stone the grapes. Pour two cups of water over the stone and let stand one hour. Pour off this liquid and add to it the water from the grapes. Measure and add the raisins, currants, sugar and boil for 20 minutes. Pack and seal. Fruit in season may be used instead of the dried fruit.

Listen, World! Dare to Think For Yourself

By Elsie Robinson

ELLA LOUIS thirty-nine next month—and she's still wondering IF SHE IS IN LOVE.

All her life Ella Lou has dreamed of Love and Marriage. . . frankly admits now she's an "old-fashioned" girl who wants a "home more than anything else." And several gentlemen have seemed quite willing to furnish her heart's desire.

But—Ella Lou has never been sure. Yes, they were nice.

Really wonderful men. And she liked them. Liked them very much.

BUT WAS IT LOVE? How could a girl really tell if it was truly Love? Over and over—year after year—Ella Lou has asked herself that question.

What did the expert Love tell her? How did she expect Love to feel? Ella Lou couldn't tell. But she'd always believed that Love, when it came, would be Perfectly Wonderful.

So marvelous! So sweet! So beautiful that it took all the hurt and fear and futility out of life and forever kept you just thrilled in THRILLED.

But hadn't Ella Lou felt like that with these nice, the really wonderful men? No—that was just the trouble—SHE HADN'T.

She'd liked them, particularly Dick, ever so much. She'd found herself thinking of them, particularly Dick, every while. She'd longed to see them, to hug them and risk their hazards, particularly Dick's, and wait for them when they came home on rainy nights. BUT—

WAS THAT LOVE? COULD SHE BE SURE THAT WAS LOVE?

And Ella Lou's heart sank at the asked. For she felt she knew the answer—... if she were REALLY in love, she'd never wonder at it.

She'd be too excited... just swept off her feet. Like those marvelous beauties you read about in men on screens. THEY

Winter Weight Gain
Is Sign of Too Much Fuel

By IDA JEAN KAIN

SO YOU think you need more food in the winter? Of course, you have a keener appetite in the cold weather and you do need more food if you spend time out in the cold in vigorous exercise—but not if you lead a sedentary life.

In that case you use more food in the warm weather, for in this case of warm heat the surrounding temperature is kept comfortably warm and we burn very few calories to maintain body warmth. Under such conditions activity determines the number of calories burned.

When you consume more food than required for body warmth and activity the result is a blanket of fat. Everyone needs a protective covering of fat between the muscles and skin, but an excessive amount is merely cumbersome. Winter or summer, if body fat represents surplus fuel.

Winter or summer, the average man weighing 150 pounds uses around 2500 calories a day. If he is smaller men require more or less food in proportion to their weight. In general, for sedentary work we use 16 to 18 calories a pound body weight as this is the activity for light exercise. These figures were compiled by Dr. Mary Swartz Rose of Columbia University.

Crafty Use Of Color

THE BEDROOM is the problem child of the house, declares House Beautiful.

Ideally it is a room to go to sleep in and hence restful; and also a room to wake up in and thus exhilarating.

Now it is obvious that there are very few things that can be both restful and exhilarating at the same time without changing drastically. So hard is the solution of the problem that the average person who is altogether and is resigned to making the bedroom a place which is either one thing or the other.

There is a middle ground, however. House Beautiful says. Find for your wall a paint of a wall-paper which is grayed and therefore tends to be low in value under artificial light. But this color should have a certain underlying gray and brightness which will pick up strongly when the sun shines in the morning. Or if you cannot devise or find such a color, break up your wall, one of two colors and the remainder of the wall.

FLAWLESS skin brings flawless poise... and with new confidence like a light around you... the world is sure to shower down the gifts of adulation that belong to lovely Shirley Ross, whose perfect complexion is emphasized by the drifts of white chiffon, accented with gold mesh that she wears.

Remarkable Cream for Lines, Blemishes and Blackheads

By ARLENE GOLD

WHAT WOULD IT MEAN to you in new hope new laughter and new friends if an erupting, blemished complexion could be purified to flawlessness? We're dead serious about this, as never before. It would be the most precious gift life's offered so far, wouldn't it?

Granted that always there is the necessary clearing up of internal conditions to be accomplished, or of simply waiting for the natural cycle of "growing up" to round its turn as the years go on—there has suddenly appeared on the market a beauty yeast-and-vitamin cream that is doing unbelievable things to hasten and even accomplish angle-headed the clearing of badly blemished skin!

Nothing frazes this cream—not even blackheads, which have been so deeply that any other means have failed, nor acne-type areas or red and blotchy and "head" type eruptions.

Because of its superlative healing and nourishing properties it is claimed to be the only cream which actually contains live yeast, and a high percentage of essential vitamin is added—complexions which are giving in to the ravages of age will find it miraculously revitalizing. Lines are fainter after use, and the texture of the skin is smoother and much finer.

It is, without doubt, the discovery of the year! One of its most startling lines of action is the entirely new way in which it takes blackheads into custody. There is something about the leaving action of the yeast combined with a secret ingredient that absolutely eliminates all the initial tissue-damaging methods of handling blackheads. It penetrates deep into the pores, stimulates and activates the tissues so that with the leaving action of the yeast and the round pores and the embedded impurities are "drawn" to the surface. They're scrubbed off!

That "scrubbing off" on some skin is accomplished in two days! Treatment, simply in overnight application. Others may take a day, or even two. But day by day—noticeable that your complexion is clearing and that your skin is being joined into admitting the new, healthy, radiant skin that is being the improvement will progress.

Little Old Mothers Hope of the World

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Some time ago it was my good fortune to attend one of the country's most famous trials.

When the young district attorney had won the case in the face of almost insuperable difficulties, people crowded 'round to congratulate him, prophesying he might make the White House in time.

Among the people in the courtroom I noticed a little old woman quietly sobbing. She was not among the crowd pressing forward to shake the young prosecutor's hand. Her work-worn face made it almost impossible, in spite of the frustration.

As the conquering hero left the courtroom, he was irresistibly restrained not to the old woman, who continued to sit and wipe away her tears.

Later, lunching with a group of newspaper women, I was told that the shabby old woman was the district attorney's mother. Foreign-born, she could hardly speak understandable English.

The mother of many children, she had divided with material in-laws that this boy was unusually gifted, and must have his chance. Her struggle to give him an education was almost unbelievable.

"Hanging on the toilet," was what she called it, because her grandfather, in Russia, he it came from, had been a leader of his people before he was assassinated.

But she never hesitated. She peddled things at night to educate this boy, that she was really giving him the success in life would put him in a different world, and make ashamed of her family, un-uncle ways.

But she never hesitated. She peddled things at night to educate this boy, that she was really giving him the success in life would put him in a different world, and make ashamed of her family, un-uncle ways.

The district attorney's wife, who went out with the Halibuts, never spared a glance at the old woman. The daughter-in-law was a much cost and a great of exulted, and she looked to a 12th degree point of the beauty partner, she'd never had to paddle to give her children college education.

So many, many letters come to me from old women like the one I saw sitting alone in the courtroom, keeping up the one such small corner.

Nearly always they are written by some mother's child, because the old women can't write in English. And their sufferings and confusion seem only to furnish amusements for the second generation.

That's what they write me about. Theirs have worldly grandsons and granddaughters who have a good education and have never known the horrors of persecution.

HOME INSTITUTE Tap Alone to Popularity

NO wonder tap dancing's so popular. It gets you a big hand at parties. It slims your figure. And it's so simple you can easily learn how in a few home lessons.

In one evening you can get the key to the whole thing—the basic tap sounds you use whether you're doing an impromptu buck to "Turkey in the Straw," or a dazzling tap at a show.

Once you have these basic taps—you've grand fun combining them in various ways and fitting them to music as the picture shows.

First a jolly tune in fox-trot time and see what you can do. Don't you feel the strong beat on count ONE—the weaker beats on counts TWO, AND, AND?

"YOU CAN'T EXPECT ORDINARY SOAPS TO PROTECT YOU FROM 'B.O.' AS LIFEBOUY DOES"

By E. C. SHERMAN, Buffalo salesman. Relates sad experience with ordinary soap

MADE THE MISTAKE OF THINKING A BATH WITH ANY KIND OF SOAP KEPT ME FRESH FOR MY DAILY CONTACTS

IMAGINE THE JOY I GOT WHEN A FRIEND SUGGESTED THAT I USE LIFEBOUY FOR MY DAILY BATH...

I REALIZED LATER THAT YOU CAN'T EXPECT ORDINARY SOAPS TO PROTECT YOU FROM 'B.O.' AS LIFEBOUY DOES...

NOW I NEVER MISS THAT LIFEBOUY SHOWER!

JUST TRY TRYING WITH Lifebovy for a week—and you'll be the best of my kind. Just wouldn't "miss that daily Lifebovy bath."

Lifebovy contains an exclusive purifying ingredient not in any other popular bath or toilet soap. Use Lifebovy for your complexion. In general, Lifebovy will help clear, freshen, bring out your skin's natural loveliness. Lifebovy is by far more than 20% milder than many leading "beauty" and "baby" soaps.

Get the Lifebovy bath for both for complexion and for hands! Remember, the germs of 27 or more diseases may be spread by hand soap. Lifebovy's purifying factor removes germs as well as dirt!

For an ordinary soap soap "B.O." as Lifebovy does... No ordinary soap gives you the after-soap feeling of Lifebovy. Lifebovy does. And you are extra clean, you know. For Lifebovy contains an exclusive purifying ingredient not in any other popular bath or toilet soap.

For all further information on the beauty yeast-and-vitamin cream which actually cures blemishes or eruptions and returns young softness to lined skins, please write to E. C. Sherman, Buffalo, New York, or write him at the Boston Evening American, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BRAD TALTON GETS LESSON IN PUGILISM

BEDTIME CONFIDENCES.
Patsy strips off stockings as she and her sister make ready for bed. "It's too bad," she tells Sheila, "that Del hasn't more sense about handling Vince. He can twist her around his finger. She won't get any of the money!"

STARTLING FIND! Patsy is more than surprised to discover, in searching Sheila's bag for lipstick, that the object which falls to floor as she fumbles for cosmetic is not a lipstick but a platinum bracelet. And Patsy is not long in getting out of Sheila the story of Brad's farewell gift. She tells Sheila that Brad, drunk, called that evening on the phone but did not reveal his whereabouts.

FIRST, YOU HAVE TO HIT 'EM! Brad finds himself in undignified position when he offers to fight proprietor of tavern near North Station because he has been refused more drinks. The genial tavern keeper finally agrees to serve Brad if latter can hit him. Brad agrees, and swings for full minute at his smiling host, who ducks punches with ease. Not so difficult for Jack Sharkey, former champ!

TO HELP THE AFFLICTED. Going out of character for the moment, Ruth Weidman and Claire Neville forgot the adventures, thrills of "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly" long enough to visit headquarters of the committee directing the coming President's Birthday Ball, there to aid in the sale of tickets and thus do their bit to help child victims of infantile paralysis. They are seen on platform with James Hall, movie actor. Three people in the picture, marked by circles, will receive $5 from the Boston American.

GIRL About TOWN

By MARGUERITE DOWNEY

With the second edition of an art collection expands in acquiring the masterpieces. A Fine Art of Boston is an annual collection of the largest collection of original art collections and comic drawings in the country.

Marguerite Downey

The entire wall space of his Commonwealth apartment is covered with these clever caricatures which range in date from the early sixties to the present day. Approximately 225 artists are represented in the collection which numbers close to four hundred sketches.

Masterpieces of the exhibit are two very fine originals done by Tom Nast of Harper's Weekly, the man who did more than any other person to break up the political Tweed ring in Tammany Hall in the 1870s. One by one several of the modern trend is represented by a caricature by Jimmy Hatlo.

Caricatures in Mr. Fine's opinion were a potent influence in directing public sentiment. They retain their vividness over a period of years. And the artist's personality is a strong factor in the collection. The collection is a collection of the best of the best. It is a collection of the best of the best. It is a collection of the best of the best.

Sales Tax Move Called Vicious By Bloomfield

Retail Trade Leader Blasts Plan in Talk At Worcester

Worcester, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The proposed 2 per cent sales tax on retail goods was today denounced as a "vicious" move by the retail trade.

W. M. C. A. Building, Bloomfield, N. J., today called the proposed 2 per cent sales tax on retail goods a "vicious" move.

As Senator Borah said in the Senate, "We are taking the tax down to the bottom and we are taking it down to the bottom."

The tax is a "vicious" move, said the retail trade leader, because it will be paid by the consumer.

The actor who plays "Caesar" in the Mercury Theater's production of Shakespeare in 1938 style at the Colonial, wears his forehead in the Hitler manner. Other Hitler mannerisms are detectable. In the New York production of "Caesar" the actor who plays the lead takes on the air of giving a remarkable resemblance to Mussolini at several points in the proceedings.

Rail Rate Plea Is Seen Helped by Wrong Forecast

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

One of the most unfortunate forecasts anyone made during 1937 was that submitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission in refusing extension of emergency freight rate surcharges. And the chances are it will rebound in favor of the railroads this year in the form of favorable action on the part of a 15 percent increase.

The forecast was made in the fall of 1937, and it was based on the assumption that the economy was in a state of depression. At the same time, the railroads were in a state of financial distress. The forecast was that the railroads would not be able to raise rates, and that the government would have to step in to help them. This forecast was based on the assumption that the economy was in a state of depression, and that the railroads were in a state of financial distress. The forecast was that the railroads would not be able to raise rates, and that the government would have to step in to help them.

DIVERGENT VIEWS

The administration and business are not as far apart in their respective views on purchasing power as they were, judging by later events from the Capitol. And in our opinion the divergent views which are so strongly emphasized by the President are behind today's break in stock prices. When business generally is slack, it is an undeniable fact that one of the first things that business men do is to lower prices. They have obviously cannot come without reductions in cost. Roughly, there are three principal reasons—wages, raw materials and taxes. If all three are cut, price reductions are out of the question and there is great economy will come very slowly.

As things change, there is no hope for the steel and wage reductions will not be so restricted that freight rates must follow. And "make a little like the steel" business will not be so restricted that freight rates must follow. And "make a little like the steel" business will not be so restricted that freight rates must follow.

STOCK PRESUMPTION

Rail prices have finally slipped on volume and the outlook is for a testing of old lows in many directions. As the parlous winter time action is of such a nature that we are inclined to expect some measure of rally before the end of the year, however, the outlook is for a testing of old lows in many directions. Eddie Cantor casts into the sea of ambitious youth again to attempt another catch such as he developed in the personalities of Deanna Durbin and Bobby Breen. This evening will find the energetic Eddie entering two issues in the radio race for prominence. He will introduce Deanna Durbin, a 13-year-old violinist, and Maureen O'Connor, a 15-year-old songstress (WEEI), when his program takes the air at 8:30 p.m.

From the moment the Deanna Durbin show was introduced on the radio, it has been a success. The young girl, who is a violinist, has been a hit with the audience. Her performance was so good that it was a surprise to many. She is a very talented young girl and her performance was a real treat for the audience. Maureen O'Connor, a 15-year-old songstress, will also be featured in the program. She is a very talented young girl and her performance was a real treat for the audience.

Seek Aid to Cut Class Sizes

To formulate plans for endorsement of the move to reduce the number of pupils in each class in the lower grades of Boston schools the Boston Junior Elementary Teachers Club will meet Friday at 4 p.m. in Teachers' College. The meeting was called by Miss Marie Parker, president, after a preliminary meeting of the board of directors called by her at her home 100 Beacon street, Boston.

SO THE ONLY SOUNDS IN THE BIG room at No. 3 O'Connell st., are the shuffle of counting thumbs, the scratch of recording pens and the footfalls of lady cash gatherers as they move along the aisles and collect the funds in wire baskets.

HIS AMERICAN AGENTS, HE SAID, WERE divided into two groups—the individual retailer who dealt in one or a few books, and the broker who recommended trustworthy vendors but handled no tickets or money. These latter salesmen scaled off rewards, he said, and gave free tickets to the individual sales folk on each book sold and cash credits to the broker. Mostly, he said, the brokers took their commissions in counterfoils and the trust of winning the rainbow gold, so that little cash pay was sent out at any time.

Indeed, said Paddy, it was a simple system, in which defaulting agents could only cheat their own customers, because no counterfoils were credited until the money was received in the Dublin office and only those to receive ever found their way to the Lord Mayor's hall. Turning in his chair, he pointed through the glass partition of his office to the tables where the girls were working saying: "Notice that the moment a girl opens an envelope she checks the cash, enters the name and number in her book, and immediately writes a receipt to be mailed back to the buyer."

WHAT FLEMING TOLD ME WAS NOT confidential. But later on examining some of the U. S. envelopes, I noticed that they were not mailed to O'Connell St., but to a variety of addresses within Dublin county and outlying towns.

The reason, said Paddy, was that American postal authorities, knowing the office location, so his agents were forced to use the waiting spots to which they could send their remittances safely. It seemed, I said, a strangely clandestine system for so worthy a purpose, and Fleming admitted it ruefully.

"For," said he, "every penny above operation expense goes to the Irish hospital trust and we have a thrift proof auditing system."

Turner Named Most Valuable Boston Payer

By JOE CASHMAN

THE FEATS of a grand pitcher and the memory of an incomparable writer will be honored by the Boston members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America at their annual dinner next week.

The pitcher is Jim Turner of the Bees, earned run champion and leading freshman pitcher of the National League.

The writer is Nicholas Joseph Flatley, late sports editor, baseball scribe and columnist of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser.

Turner's selection, agreed the committee named to pick Boston's most valuable player and performer of 1937, couldn't have been easier.

A 30-year-old yearling who breaks a flock of first-year records, is the most effective twirler in his loop and wins 20 games in "pays" in any company.

So in the kind of company that held the Red Sox and Bees in the second division last year, Mikan Jim naturally was a pronounced pick.

And the committee further agreed it was an equally easy task when, after it decided to give a plaque to the player of its choice, it was asked to dedicate the trophy to a departed member whose achievements had brought credit to the association and whose personality endeared him to all who had the good fortune to know him.

These standards applied in the case of Flatley.

Nick Sportsman and Gentleman

SOME FANS would remember Nick Flatley as the man who never acquired a larger fan than he himself.

But the victim of that little genius had puffed down the throes of expert eyes who caught the most telling of his humor and drama in the passing sports parade through a series of smokes from an omniscient eye.

But he had all over at the right of his time on the field. He was the sort of fellow we all aspire to be but altogether too few of us ever succeed in being.

A writer known from coast to coast for his colorful type of reporting, his intimate knowledge of the game, his keen and kind understanding of human nature, his fairness and his frankness.

And above all else a giant sportsman and gentleman, his personality and character as well as his wit and sense of humor.

Thus, it will be with suitable pride that on next Wednesday night, the Boston baseball writers will put tribute to a pitching arm who has left a mark on the game by presenting him the first annual award perpetuating the name of Nick Flatley, an old sports man.

Ann Marsters Got Interview and Picture With Bill Terry of Giants

Girl Feature Writer Tells How She Talked With Baseball Leader at Boston Hotel

Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, gave his views on sports writers in a story now appearing in a national magazine. He also gave a picture to the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser, which was published in the Boston Sunday Advertiser of September 23, 1937, giving the detailed story of just what happened.

By ANN MARSTERS

This is a story about Bill Terry, the Giants' manager. It's a story about that man who's the heart of the Giants. It's a story about that man who's the heart of the Giants.

Maybe you don't know the sort of a person Bill Terry is. I didn't either—until yesterday morning. And the finding out was more fun for us than it was for poor Terry.

Myself and my cameraman played unobtrusively into the middle of his breakfast at the Copley Plaza. From a distance he looked quite nice—even handsome. (That isn't for Mr. Terry's information. He probably knew it already.) Then, when we were quite close, he took his lone stand against us with his napkin in both hands.

Balks at Reporters

"It's against my principles," he said, as though he'd refused to be interviewed. "It's against my principles."

"Well, he said, 'maybe I'm afraid they'll get too much on me.' (That, I suppose, was meant to be humorous.) "In fact," he continued, "I never give interviews to anyone."

"What I think is my own business," says he. "I don't care," he answered snappily, and seemed completely pleased with himself. "What difference does it make to me?"

It didn't do any good to reason with him or to explain that he was not a person but a person. He was not a person but a person. He was not a person but a person.

But also—Mr. Terry said, "No." So we thanked him, getting his interview.

The Giants, we discovered, do not share their manager's odd attitude. They are a team of men who are men. They are a team of men who are men.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

And he was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man. He was a man who was a man.

Bill Terry wouldn't come to pose for the cameraman and Ann Marsters, so they went and posed the New York Giants' manager, who had been turning a cold shoulder to all interviews and photographers since he graduated into his post as pilot of a world's champion club. Unsuspecting, Terry was snatched by a Boston Sunday Advertiser cameraman, Ed Stephen, as he was snatched into an interview by Ann Marsters. Terry's office at the Copley Plaza, New York, is in the background.

Yvon Robert Loses Title for Failure To Meet Thesz

A. W. A. Recognizes Thesz as Champion When Robert Refuses to Defend Crown Against Mid-Westerner

Yvon Robert, colorful Montreal youth, no longer is recognized as the world's heavyweight wrestling champion by the American Wrestling Association, according to a bulletin sent out today from the office of Thomas E. Gleason, president of the association.

The association's bulletin also announced that the American Wrestling Association has swung its championship support to Louis Thesz, brilliant and young St. Louis matman.

Thesz also is recognized as world's champion by the Midwest Wrestling Association, which is controlling the field of the sport in some 30 odd states.

The American Wrestling Association took its drastic action against Robert after he refused to defend his title against Thesz, who is a native of St. Louis.

6 Ft. 9 in. Jump Looked for in Prout Meet

Walker, Threadgill, Johnson, Steers Headliners

By WALTER KILEY

Not much is being said about the high jump field in Saturday's Prout games at Boston, Garden. But any time the committee can get a half dozen or more bidders who can clear six feet six, seven feet eight and even better, and get into the one field, they can't help but be interested.

Usually the high jump is just one of the affairs going on while trophy events are occupying the limelight.

This year the high jumpers are going to have a bit of the spotlight for themselves.

Everything will come to a complete halt for the minute when the six foot six inch pole is set and the winner is declared.

As that winner should be some one who will clear six feet six inches with the grand new board and the new board is expected to be a record breaker for this important occasion.

WALKER CHAMPION

Some 20 odd ambitious stars are entered in the first but many of them will pass by the qualifying rounds early in the going.

Only those who can better six feet six inches will be in the final round. It is expected that the field will be among three colored and there will be a few who will be in the final round.

First of the Negroes is Mel Walker of Ohio State, who is a two-time world champion. He is a two-time world champion. He is a two-time world champion.

Robert's Loss of $25,000 More for World's Title Braddock-Farr

By JACK CONWAY

THE ACTION of the American Wrestling Association of stripping Yvon Robert of his world's heavyweight championship and setting Louis Thesz up as title holder was the most startling move ever made by the controlling body of the mat game.

Robert had been ordered to defend his title against Thesz who was previously recognized as champion by the Mid-West Wrestling Association as a result of his victories over Everett Marshall and Dan O'Mahony. Robert insisted he had the right to pick his own opponent, and refused to clash with Thesz. The American Wrestling Association then used its big stick and ruled that it would recognize Thesz rather than Robert as champion.

The ruling of the American Wrestling Association is certain to draw heavy fire. Robert and Eddie Quinn, his manager, will naturally insist that championships are won and lost in the ring, and only a referee's decision can cause a title to shift.

Thesz will probably announce this statement by declaring he was champion even before he got the recognition of the American Wrestling Association. He will point to the fact he can trace back his title claims as a result of his win over Marshall to the immortal Frank Gotch, and that at the best Robert was merely a title holder created by the American Wrestling Association after Dan O'Mahony had been defeated by Dick Shikat in New York.

Regardless of what official recognition Thesz may receive there is not any question about the wrestling ability of the 22-year-old Hungarian from St. Louis.

I received my first peek at Thesz in action as he won from the veteran Ray Zedden in the Garden City arena. Thesz proved he is one of the fastest heavyweights to ever enter a ring. He swarmed all over Zedden and beat him by the fury of his attack, and his ability to slip and slide with lightning-like rapidity.

Thesz is six feet one inch tall and weighs 225 pounds. He is set up as a perfect athlete with a powerful chest, well developed body and legs, better than the average reach, and a thick neck. Few heavyweights or boxers get any place unless they have the perfect build. A large neck acts as a shock absorber when heavyweights are bumped on the chin by a rival's punch.

If Robert had felt he could have beaten Thesz, he would not have been located in meeting him. Thesz was fortunate to win over Dan O'Mahony in their recent grueling tussle, and probably was of the opinion Thesz had better than an even chance of defeating him.

Robert was surprised by the ruling of the American Wrestling Association. He didn't think the power body in wrestling would take such drastic action against him. He felt that the most severe injury any condition.

Even when told he had been stripped of his title, Robert insisted he wouldn't meet any conditions.

Kidnaper Anders Lucky He Didn't Grab 'Jizzy'

Would Have Given Up Paying Cardinals To Come and Talkative One Off His Hands

By BOB CONNORS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—We don't mean to make light of the mugging job that the local G-men, headed by J. Edgar himself, did on kidnap Peter Anders. But the mad man would have been caught anyway. He was through. He was next going to kidnap Jizzy Dooz. It would have served them both right.

It isn't difficult to imagine the trial and tribulations of the poor but conscientious kidnapers who had taken Anders. It would be a reasonable guess that the kidnapers would have been caught anyway, because it would be the only reasonably soundproof room available for the kidnap. The kidnapers would have been caught anyway, because it would be the only reasonably soundproof room available for the kidnap.

Then there would be all the other things that would happen. The kidnapers would have been caught anyway, because it would be the only reasonably soundproof room available for the kidnap.
